TESTIMONY IN THE RHINELANDER CASE SOME RATHER LIVELY EPISODES IN THE HEARING

-RHINELANDER AN INTERESTED LISTENER, The inquiry into the sanity of William C. Rhine-The inquiry into the sanity of William C. Rhine-lander was resumed shortly after noon vesterday, in the Judge's chambers of the Court of General Sessions. A number of prominent medical men were present, including Dr. A. E. Macdonald, medical superintendent of the Ward's Island Asylum, Dr. Allan McLane Hamilton, Dr. John C. Hannon, who testified as an expert in the case of Henry Prouse Cooper; Dr. Thomas Dimon, formerly superintendent of the lunatic asylum at Aubum; and James B. Silkmen, of the Society for Promoting the welfare of the lusane, whose case excited much interest some time ago in whose case excited much interest some time ago in connection with the Utica Asylum, Rhinelander was among the earliest arrivals, and connection with the Utica Asylum,

Rhinelander was among the earliest arrivals, and walked in, apparently unconcerned, with the peculiar stride of a tall, leose-jointed man. He asked for the morning papers, and read the reports of his case with interest, holding the paper a few inches from his face. Throughout the session he was composed and attentive, and manifested a decided interest in the testimony of one of the witnesses from the Tombs. Lawyer John Douglass was recalled to testify that Rhinelanders symptoms had become more marked of late. They were so marked that the people in Mr. Drake's office did not pay any attention to them; they had become his regular habit. A hiely till between Rhinelander's Counsel and one of the commission afforded an appetizer before the solid testimony was produced. Frederick K. Clark, Judge Curtis's associate took exception to a statement in one of the papers concerning Rhinelander's bearing under Dr. Douglass's scrutiny.

Mr. Patterson—That does not matter, Mr Clark. We don't propose to decide this case by the newspapers.

Mr. Clark—I know that Judges are down on newspapers.

William W. Jackson testified that he was a physician of fifteen years' practice, and for five years was connected with the City Prison. He had seen Rhinelander several times at the Tombs. His testimony was similar to that of Dr. Hardy on the preceding day, and he was severely cross-examined by Judge Curtis, who asked: "By what inthenee are examiners in lineacy appointed by the Commissioners of Charities and Correction—political or medical?" This was objected to by Mr. Bowers, Judge Curtis commented on the close resemblance of Dr. Jackson's testimony to that of Dr. Hardy, "even to forms of expression." Under his questioning the witness said that if Rhinelander had general paresis then he had it now, and its existence could be ascertained by medical men. He kept no memoranda of occurrences in the Tombs, but relied entirely on his recollection. He had five or six interviews with Rhinelander; found a weak and irregular action of his heart and a thickness of speech when excited. Judge Curtis asked: "Is it a peculiarity of your recollection that conversation changes in expression and form?" This caused a little dispute between Mr. Patterson and Judge Curtis, the former missiting that certain answers of the prisoner had been previously given.

Judge Curtis—He did not testify on that point.

Mr. Patterson—He did.

John F. Oesterreicher, another keeper at the Tombs, testafied as to Rhinelander's personal habits in the prison. He had taken him once to Earle's Hotel from the court to see his wife.

Mr. Bowers asked that the commission adjourn to meet at Mr. Drake's house. Judge Curits objected emphatically to "making a circus" of the commission by taking it around from place to place. Drake's testimony was not material, he said, and as he was naturally the complament against Ehmelander in criminal law, he could not be made an expert on his condition. He added!

I am here only to meet the issues the court marked out for us. I con go into others I shall declare I object to leaving this place, and I bloct to the testimony of Mr. Drake. If have declined to crossegamine my witnesses except on questions of the present saming of our client.

The young woman who was picked up in an insensible condition in front of the Windsor Hotel on Monday might and taken to Believne Hospital under the supposition that she had attempted to commit suicide was discharged yesterday. She was immediately taken in hand by the police authorities and after spending a short time at the Nineteenth Precinct Police Station was taken before Justice Duffy at the Yorkville Police Court. Then Officer Dickson told the story of his finding her partially insensible in Fifth-ave., and said that he called an ambulance and had her taken to Belle vie Hospital, where it was found that she was not suffering from laudanum poisoning, as has been alleged.

Pauls Esperanza or Morales, as ske subsequently gave her name, was then examined herself. She stated that she was suffering from an attack of hysteria, to which she had before been subject in South America. She further asserts that she is a native of Muscatine, and that she was educated in England. Her husband is dead and her children and friends live in Lima. She herself has friends in Trenton, N. J., and was in New-York on a visit to some friend when seized with the sudden illness. As there was no evidence to show that she had attempted to take her own life she was discharged. She afterward said in conversation that the hints of a deep mystery in her life which she had given to a Times reporter and on which she had built a thrilling story, were merely due to her desire to give the "poor young man something to write about as he seemed so auxious for a romance." seemed so auxious for a romance.

When the patrons of the Independent Steamboat Company reached the various piers of Staten Island yesterday to take the boat for New-York, circulars printed in red ink were placed in their hands, of which the following is a copy:

The Independent Steamboat Company, honestly desiring to give the people of the north shore of Staten Island relief from a grassing and oppressive monopoly, and contidently hoping to lower the price and heighten the efficiency of transportation facilities between the Island and New-York, was established in good faith. It has been maintained for the public benefit, and, of course, in the hone of reasonable prafit. Many improvements were contemplated and would have been put into operation. Unformancy for the public, however, the monopoly has boated the city to obtain an infunction prohibiting the Independent Steamboat Company from running the Independent of the boats of the course. The first witness for the day was H. Crager Oaklex. Minelander is maternal unde. He testified to meeting Rhinelander just after the shooting, and asked. Willie, what have you done? Rhinelander suid: "I've shot the secondrel who has been trying for years to separate my wife from me. She has been coming here, and she has no business tried to pacify him by saying that Mr. Drake was his best friend, and would not do such a thing as he charged. Rhinelander was greatly excited and worked up about it, and said he was justified in his act, and had been so advised by a lawyer. He said: "I did it to protect my honor and the honor of the Rhinelander name." He added that he had a detective down at the door and said: "Yon'll know him by the umbrella under his nim." Rhinelander saked for a drink of water and said he smelled brandy in it. An amusing scene was witnessed when the immigrants from the steamer Nevada were landed. Jennie Nelson, a comely lass of unicteen, was one of the most quiet, sedate and yet apparently happy passengers on the voyace. Immediately after her name, age and destination had been registered at Castle Garden, she was observed to start with a bound toward the entrance of the rotunda, and the next minute was clasped in the arms of Thomas Smith, age twenty-four, who had preceded her by a few months. Before he left home he promised to cherish his love for her, and in a short time send for to become his wite. He soon found employment, and in due time sent for his betrothed. After an informal exchange of lovers' greetings vesterday the couple walked up Broadway with Clerk Kilroy and were married in the study of Trimity Church.

The official examination by State examiners of the Wall Street Bank was not completed yesterday. Officers and directors said that until this inspection had been concluded they had nothing more to say about the affairs of the bank. They expressed considerable anxiety to avoid a receivership, if possible, but said that they should be guided wholly by the judgment of the official examiners. It was runnored early in the day that the bank had called ill its demand loans, but this was positively denied by the officers later in the day. It was said that many customers had paid their call loans voluntarily, but that the bank had called the standard of the later than the same more days of the standard of the later than the same more days of the standard of the later the same was more of the president of the bank had withdrawn its account on Saturday. He was found at one of the hotels and was sent to Amsterdam to answer the charge of robbery.

CHILDREN BURIED IN SOAP-BOXES.

CHILDREN BURIED IN SOAP-BOXES.

The Commissioners of Charities and Correction of Kings County investigated vesterday the charges that County Undertaker Foran did not furnish the pine coffins that his contract called for in which to bury the pauper dead, but used rough boxes. The contract calls for good and substantial pine coffins at a price of $2.50 cach. Superintendent Murray, of the County Almshouse, testified that he and Dr. Arnold, of the Hospital for Incurables, had two bodies recently disinterred in the Potters Field, and found them buried in rough boxes, which were not coffin-shaped, and the lids were made of pieces fastened together with strips. John Doughterly, an aged pauper employed to dig graves in the Potters' Field since 1873, told how the boxes were used, and said that worse ones were sometimes put in the graves. He had seen little children buried in soap boxes. He finally admitted that the bodies were brought to the graveyard in iceboxes and that he sold the boxes used as coffins to the driver for the County Undertaker for tifty cents apiece. Undertaker Foran said that his driver must be embezzling from him, as the driver had $2.50 to buy each coffin. It is probable that the matter will be laid before the Grand Jury.

THE BROOKLYN FEDERAL BUILDING. A rumor prevailed in Brooklyn yesterday that in view of the evidence before the Congressional Investigating Committee, recently, as to the high price paid by the Government for the site at Washington and Johnson sts, for the new Federal building, Secretary Folger would apply to Congress when it meets for a larger appropriation so that a more suitable site could be secured. It was said that for it meets for a larger appropriation so that a more suitable site could be secured. It was said that for a little more money a site twice as suitable could be secured. In connection with this the story was told that Assistant United States District-Attorney Angel was offered a bribe of $500 by a politician if he would delay the papers certifying to the title for two days after they came into his hands on June 21. Mr. Angel promptly refused, and then one of his friends sought to secure the same thing from him, telling him that the persons he represented would make it worth $10,000 to him. After his refusal the friend said that the delay was desired by the opponents of the site in order to secure title to a small plot of ground in the centre of the site wind by the heirs of Julia Lipion, and if they could get it a lis pendens would be filed, and the question of a clear title could not be settled for several years. Mr. Angel said the story was true, but refused to name the man who offered him the $500.

THE PARK BOARD ACCEPTS ANY GIFT.

A dispatch appeared in several papers yesterday from Peterboro, N. Y., saying that the family of Greene South an eccentric naturalist of that place, has reversed their intention to convey Mr. Smith so ornithological collection to the Park Commissioners of this city. The collection was said to be valued at over $200,000, that portion devoted to humming birds alone being worth $75,000. Mr. Smith devoted his life to this work, and finally died in the house he had built for his birds. They had been collected from all parts of the world, and he had offered to give them to the city but, affronted by the delay in recognizing his ofter, had finally refused to make the transfer. General Vicle, president of the Park Board, said yesterday:

Belleville.—James Duffy, a workman, fell from one of the large engines of the Jersey City Water Works and was seriously injured, yesterday....

The new Building and Loan Association elected permanent officers.

Hoboken.—Paul Wetner, one of the thieves who broke into Professor Wall's house on Tuesday, says that he is the scien of a wenlifty and respected family in Dessan, Germany. His father, he says, is a German nobleman, and holds a high official position..... Thouble is brewing between the Common Council of Hoboken, N. J., and the Supreme Court. Judge Knapp some time ago appointed ex-Judge Garretson to examine the accounts of defaulting Collector McMahon. Judge Garretson completed his examination two weeks ago and submitted his report to Judge Knapp, together with a bill of $1,475 for services. The judge approved the bill, and directed the Common Council to pay it. The Council, however, has decided that the charges are exorbitant, and reduced the amount to $684. The matter will be brought to the attention of Judge Knapp, and an order applied for requiring the Council to show cause why it should not be deemed in contempt.

Passate.—The body of John Reuch, a German in contempt.

Passatc.—The body of John Reich, a German tailor, was found yesterday in Vrseiand Lake. It is supposed that he committed suicide, as his hat and a nackage were found near the lake. He had been sick and his habits were irregular.

LONG ISLAND.

LONG ISLAND.

EAST NEW-YORK,—William Upson, engineer of the "wildeat" locomotive which ran into a street-car at the Manhattan Beach crossing in Broadway on Sunday night and killed a passenger, was admitted to $3,000 bail yesterday. Richard Seward, fireman of the same engine, was oaled in $2,000.

Long Island City.—Dr. Denler, Health Officer of this city, and Dr. Taylor, of the Health Board, visited the cow stables at Blisaville yesterday and discovered a number of cows that were suffering with pleuro pneumonia, all of which were ordered to be killed. Notice was served upon John Meyers, who keeps a large number of cows, that he must close his stables. The tertifizing and fatholing establishments were also visited.....Judge Armstrong has appointed L. Manley and Dr. W. R. Taylor to examine into the condition of Louis Thommasmeyer, of Astoria, who was recently released from the insane asylum, but again showed signs of insanity, and is now in the Queens County Jail.

ROCKLAND COUNTY.

NYACK.-Over fifty citizens have been subported to appear as witnesses in the case of Herman Kasten the grogshop keeper who is to be tried at Pearl, River to-day on a charge of violating excise laws.

ALONG THE SOUND.

BRIDGEPORT.—The tenth reunion of the Barnes family will be held at Seaside Park on August 30.

The body of Captain John Bauer was taken from the hold of the sunken barge President on Monday, where it had lain over four months. Nonwalk.-J. Belden Huriburt and C. B. Coolidge were chosen delegates to the state Convention. They will support P. C. Louisbury for Governor. THE BROADWAY RAILROAD FRANCHISE.

THE BROADWAY KAILROAD FRANCHISE.

J. A. Roosevelt, Brayton Ives, George Henry Warren, George t. Haven, and William C. Whitney, directors of the Broadway Railroad Company, have written to the Mayor requesting him to withhold his signature from the ordinance graating the franchise for a railroad in Broadway to Jacob Sharp and his associates, of the Broadway Surface Railroad Company. They say that this grant was made practically without a hearing to property-owners or the public, without imposing any conditions as to the exchange of business with other roads, or requiring that the road be opened to the travel of all companies; without requiring a compensation to the city for a franchise worth a very large sum, and in unseemly histe and under most suspicious sur-part of New York.

STALING A WAPTH FROM A COLORED WOMAN,
While Mrs. Ellie Wilburn, a colored woman, of
No. 115 Fleet-place, Brooklyn, was in Eighth-ave, between Sixteenth and Seventeenth sts., yesterday, Edward McDernott, a boy living at No. 36 Forsythe st., suddenly sprang out of a doorway, and setzing her watch and chain ran down Sixteenthsts., followed by the woman screaming at the top of her yone. The fugnitive ran into a tenement house, followed by an other and Mrs. Wilburn, who searched the house and found him under a bed on the top floor. TO EXAMINE WESTERN GLACIAL RELICS.

Professor James Geikie, of the University of Edinburgh, accompanied by James Wilson, like Professor Geikie, a geologist, and employed by the English Government in the inspection of mines, arrived in this city yesterday on the Anchor Line steamship Circassia. They will start for Chicago this morning, and after making an examination of the ghacial relies in Iowa and Wisconsin, will attend the meeting of the British association at Montreal. On September 3 they will visit the American association in Philadelphia, and after its session has closed and they have enjoyed a tipup the Hudson, they will return to their duties. Professor Geikie is a genial Scotchman with a strong inclination to see all the interesting features of American life with as little formality as possible.
